MERGERS & ACQUISITIONS AND VALUATION TRENDS IN THE PUBLIC AND PRIVATE MARKETS

Accelerating Adoption Of Automation And Al-Driven Decision Making

Dear Clients and Friends,

While macroeconomic headwinds and geopolitical tensions continue to dominate headlines, we remain focused on the underlying momentum building across financial technology. Though global trade deals, military conflict and general market uncertainty remain ongoing - companies in our FinTech ecosystems continue focusing on what they do best, whether that be managing payments fraud, valuing highly illiquid derivative securities, or delivering quality advice to retail wealth consumers. The world continues to spin, and clients remain in need of technology solutions to drive efficiency or topline opportunity to drive progress forward.

Beyond the noise, innovation and productivity continues to move forward-quietly, steadily, and with increasing impact.

Our latest report on M&A values and trends in the 10 sectors of the Fintech, data, and analytics world that we follow and sometimes lead is here.

A key driver of this progress is the accelerating adoption of automation and Al-driven decision making. From underwriting and fraud detection to investment analytics and customer engagement, we are seeing technology streamline complexity and deliver faster, smarter outcomes. This is no longer about experimentation—it's about embedded intelligence powering real-world workflows.

Hand in hand with this is a growing emphasis on security and trust. As systems become more autonomous, expectations around resilience and accountability rise in parallel. Institutions are investing in infrastructure that protects data, reinforces compliance, and builds stakeholder confidence. Trust, in many ways, is becoming the real differentiator—and firms that can pair Al sophistication with strong governance are earning a clear edge.

These themes are also playing out in the M&A and fundraising markets, which have grown trickier in recent weeks. There's been a visible pullback in some segments—but strong companies are still getting deals done. A recent example: we advised on the sale of cQuant.io, a quantitative analytics platform serving energy and commodity markets, to ZEMA Global Data Corporation. The transaction highlights the continued demand for differentiated, domain-specific platforms with clear customer value and scalable tech.

For founder-led businesses with solid fundamentals and a clear growth narrative, 2025 still presents a compelling-if more selective-window to explore strategic options.

As always, we welcome the conversation and are here to help.
